TEXAS A&M FOUNDATION

Annual 2008 Report

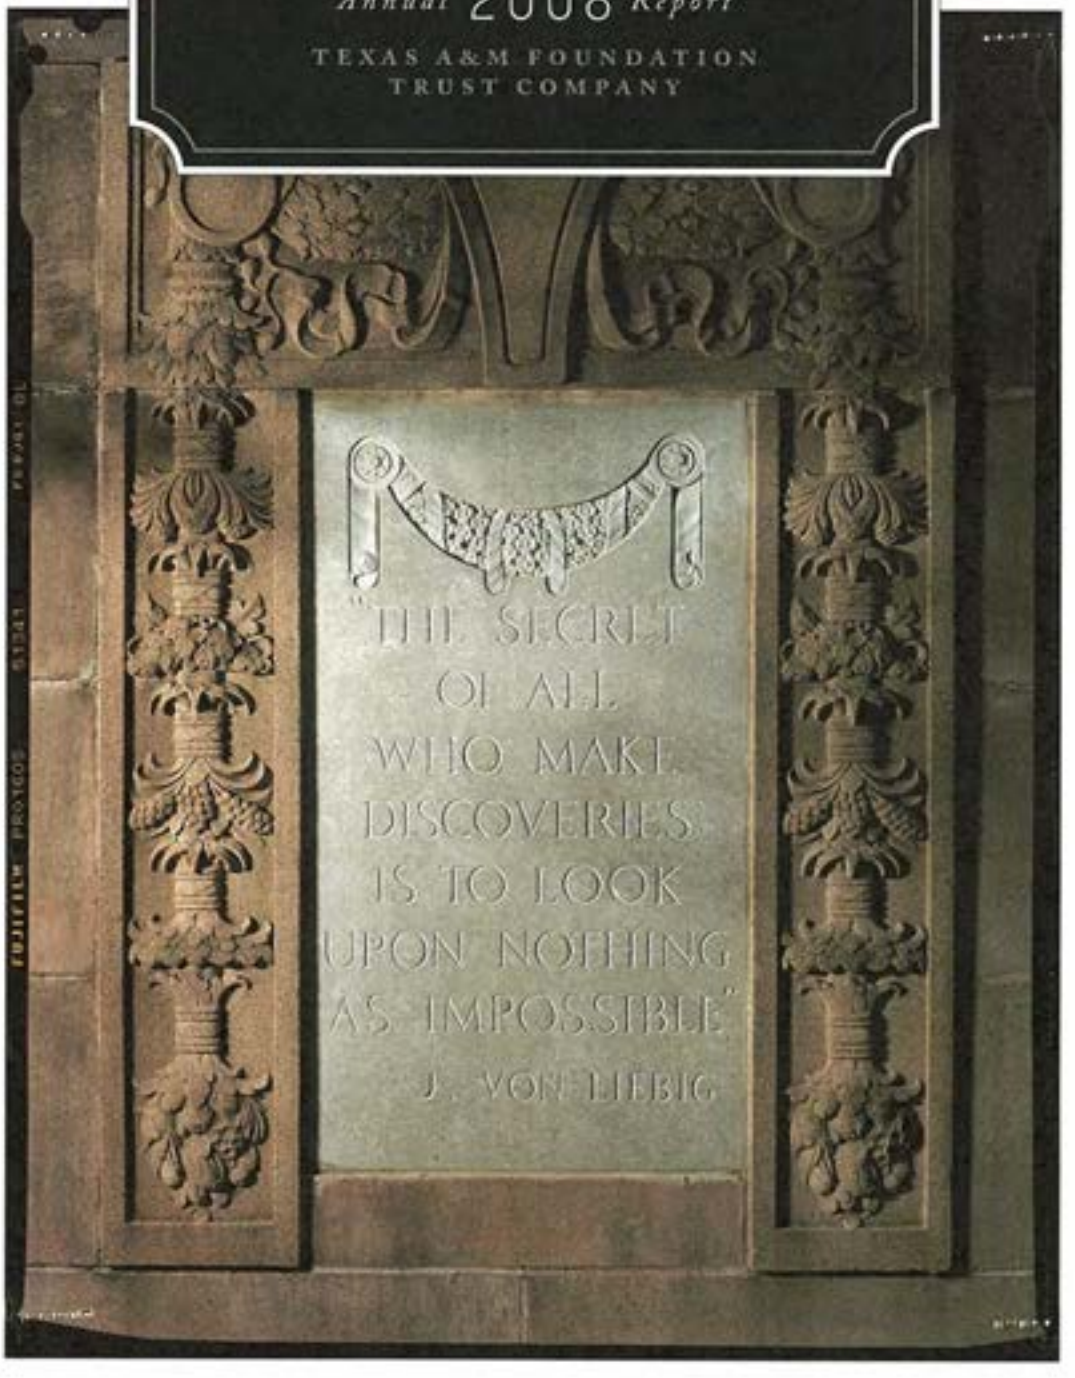
TEXAS A&M FOUNDATION
TRUST COMPANY



AGGIE GENEROSITY

HERE for THE DURATION

First, we want to thank you, our donors, for your continuing generosity. This annual report serves a dual purpose: It introduces special former students and friends who are changing the lives of Texas A&M students through scholarships and fellowships, and it provides a financial review of the Foundation for the 2008 fiscal year, which ended June 30, 2008.

We know that during good times, we must manage for the inevitable bad times. This philosophy has prepared us for the predictable valleys that follow peaks in the economic cycle. Despite the financial challenges, fiscal year 2008 showed a solid, respectable financial performance for the Foundation. The tangible results of your devotion and generosity for Texas A&M are manifest across campus.

One example is the new George P. Mitchell '40 Physics Buildings. Through a $35 million donation by Mitchell and his wife, Cynthia, the physics department will relocate to two new buildings during the next year. This gift is the latest in a series supporting the university's scientific discipline and the physics department in particular. With previous gifts for academic chairs, professorships and the Giant Magellan

Telescope, the Mitchells are Texas A&M's most financially supportive benefactors of the modern day, with donations now totaling more than $53 million.

The Mitchells were not alone in their support of our faculty. In fiscal year 2008 our donors endowed 16 faculty chairs and professorships, including the Harry E. Bovay Jr. Endowed Chair for the History and Ethics of Professional Engineering. Funds from the Bovay chair supplement a full professor in the College of Liberal Arts who maintains a strong commitment to teaching the history of engineering and current standards of professional ethics and values. This gift is making a direct impact on Dr. Charles E. "Ed" Harris Jr., its inaugural holder, and on every student he teaches.

Your generous gifts also endowed 124 new scholarships in fiscal year 2008. Lt. Col. Charles A. Williams' '37 momentous donation will establish multiple President's Endowed Scholarships (PES) for high-achieving high school seniors. Williams' PES endowment will fund in perpetuity four-year stipends for 40 students.

These are just three examples out of thousands of gifts, large and small, making a difference at Texas A&M.

In fiscal year 2008 you also created seven new graduate fellowships and more than 170 additional endowments to benefit our students, faculty, programs and structures. Clearly our students and faculty continue to benefit from your gifts for scholarly activities, and the Aggie experience that you personify is stronger and more inspiring than ever.

As we go to press with this annual report, however, the Foundation is navigating through economic turbulence. We know that you are not immune to its effects, either. Many university endowments are feeling the sting, and our long-term investment pool—while performing better than most—has lost about 21 percent of its value since June 30.

In the quarter that ended Sept. 30, the Foundation's investments performed slightly better than its benchmarks, the Morgan Stanley All Country World Index (MSCI) and the Lehman Aggregate Bond Index. These indices were down 12.7 percent for the quarter; A&M Foundation investments lost 11.4 percent. By the end of October, we estimated an additional 12 percent loss.

Those disappointing results must be weighed against the long-term strategy pursued by our investment committee. We should keep in mind that endowments last forever and that we should always look more than seven years ahead in considering investment strategies and evaluations. The economic crisis seems wide and deep, but decades from now it probably will be but a blip in history books. The wise and watchful work of our investment staff has left us a healthy cash reserve and put us in a position that is strong relative to many of our higher education counterparts. Unlike many other university endowments, we have preserved sufficient cash and liquidity in our portfolio to avoid being forced to sell holdings in a falling market.

That same reserve will allow us to invest in financially sound opportunities, many at historically low prices. We are carefully studying this situation as it represents a landmark opportunity for the Foundation to benefit significantly. During this recession, we will pursue prudent investments while spending conservatively.

In anticipation of reduced operating income, we cut our fiscal year 2009 operating budget by about 10 percent. In addition, with few exceptions, we have frozen hiring for vacant positions. This strategy will keep our cost-per-dollar raised as low as possible. And we will continue to allocate assets in our investment portfolio to protect the long-term value of our endowment.

But hope springs eternal. In October we launched the $300 million universitywide Operation Spirit and Mind™ scholarship initiative. Despite the volatile stock market and nationwide credit squeeze, your support for Texas A&M is unwavering. Already Operation Spirit and Mind has recorded current gifts of more than $38.9 million and planned gifts of more than $34 million.

This initiative will raise private funds for new endowed scholarships and graduate fellowships for generations of Aggies. Given the state of the economy, students need help now more than ever. Operation Spirit and Mind is a crucial component of Texas A&M's Vision 2020 goal of being ranked one of the top public universities 11 years from now. Through this initiative, we are confident that your Aggie energy and industry will raise support for our students' academic pursuits to a new level.

For more than a century, Texas A&M has enjoyed loyal support from you, its former students and friends, and we know you will continue investing in the education and future of Texas Aggies. Thank you for your support of the scholarships, academic and leadership programs, and faculty that help Texas A&M maintain its high standard of excellence and distinctive student experience.

President of the Texas A&M Foundation

Each year, thousands of deserving students apply for scholarships at Texas A&M but do not receive awards because there are many more applicants than funds available. Many of these students have exeellent academic records and are involved in numerous school, church and community activities. As tuition costs continue to rise, scholarship applications pour in.

The Consumer Price Index shows that tuition increases have outpaced every other major category of U.S. expenses since 1982, including medical care. Why has tuition increased so drastically? As recently as 1992, Texas state appropriations covered 45 percent of Texas A&M University's operating budget, but over time, the state has had to shift limited resources to programs that can't generate their own income. By 2007, higher-education appropriations had shrunk to 26 percent of A&M's budget. To cover operating expenses, state-funded universities have had to raise money from one of the few available avenues: tuition. At Texas A&M, students and their families now shoulder one-third of the university's budget, a jump from 1995, when they handled one-fifth of the budget.

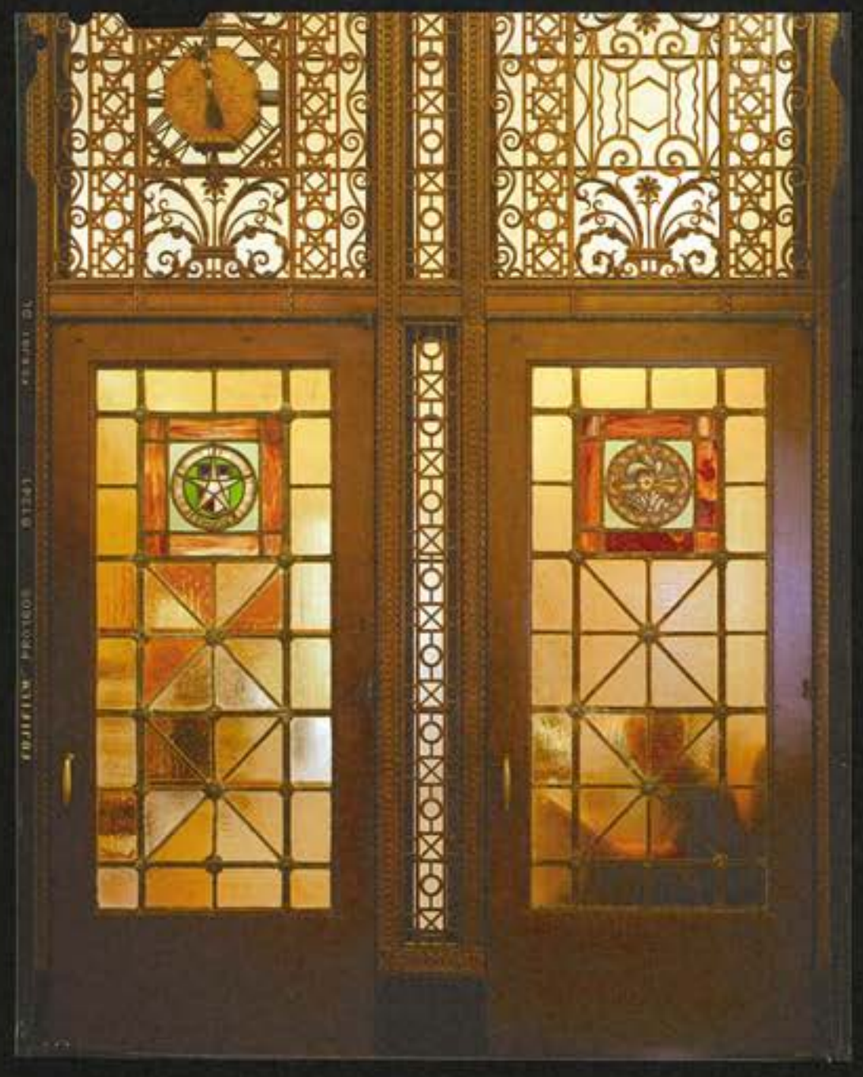
A NEW SCHOLARSHIP INITIATIVE

As tuition climbs, students choose schools largely based on the size of the financial package offered. At universities across the nation, the best high school seniors often receive full-ride scholarships. To give us a competitive edge, Texas A&M must offer even more scholarships and graduate fellowships. It's difficult for students to choose A&M if they are offered a better financial package elsewhere.

To combat this problem, Texas A&M University has launched a new scholarship initiative, Operation Spirit and Mind.℠

The following pages highlight a few scholarship donors and the students who benefit from their generosity through President's Endowed Scholarships, Foundation Excellence Awards, Endowed Opportunity Awards, Endowed Regents' Scholarships, global study scholarships, college- and department-based scholarships, Southerland Aggie Leader Awards and Corps Scholarships.

These philanthropists represent all that is good about Texas A&M University, and these students are some of our most promising scholars. All are a special part of the spirit and mind of this university.



DONOR-NAMED GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP

Donor-named graduate fellowships support a graduate student with yearly stipends. The amount of the award depends on the amount of the donation. Most graduate fellowship endowments begin at $300,000 because that gift amount generates a competitive stipend for a graduate student.

DONORS

HARRIET and JOE B. FOSTER '56

HOUSTON, TEXAS

FOR THE NEXT 20 YEARS, Harriet and Joe Foster's fellowship will provide a $10,000 annual stipend to a full-time graduate student with a demonstrated propensity for leadership, public service and public volunteerism. The student on their fellowship must plan to pursue employment in the nonprofit sector after graduation.

"The fact that the Bush School has a program that prepares kids for not-for-profit careers really struck our fancy," Joe Foster '56 says. "We're involved with several nonprofits in Houston, and we understand the need for people trained as professional managers of these organizations, people who want to be in managerial positions rather than those who are reluctantly thrust into them."

Foster graduated from Texas A&M with degrees in petroleum engineering and business administration. For 31 years, he worked at Tenneco Oil, where he held several top administrative positions, including president. In 1989 he created Newfield Exploration Co., where he was chief executive officer until 2000 and chairman until 2005. He is now chairman of TPH Partners, a Newfield subsidiary focusing on private investment opportunities. Foster was inducted into the Texas Business Hall of Fame in 2006.

Since most members of the Ryder family are University of Texas fans, Eleanor Ryder's Aggie grandfather, Ed Ivey '41, spent years trying to bribe his grandchildren to attend Texas A&M. He's thrilled that his granddaughter ended up in College Station.

After graduating from Trinity University in San Antonio, Ryder spent six years teaching English in Japan. While in Asia, she participated in a driving tour through Cambodia. During the tour, Ryder stopped at several villages, where she played with local children and met some of their school teachers. One teacher explained the challenges face by Cambodian educators, whose students attend classes in three-room shacks for only half a day in order to work the second half. School supplies were extremely limited—as were available teachers.

"The disparity really spoke to me. It was one of those life-changing experiences."

From that moment, Ryder decided she wanted her future career to combine nonprofit work with educational aid.

"Being chosen for this fellowship just shows me that this is where I need to be at this point in my life."

PRESIDENT'S ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

The President's Endowed Scholarship (PES) is the premier scholarship program at Texas A&M. PEGGY and LEE DUGGAN JR. '49

SUGAR LAND, TEXAS

"Maroon-blooded Aggies through and through," is the way Lee Duggan Jr. '49 describes himself and his wife, Peggy. They proudly established two President's Endowed Scholarships that will carry their name and family legacy into the future. Lee Duggan's grandfather was in the first Aggie band in 1894, and the couple has two children and one granddaughter who also are Aggies. A member of the Corps of Cadets, Lee managed the basketball team from 1946 to 1947. He earned a business degree, and 10 days after graduation reported to the Army.

He has had many business endeavors, including years in the cattle business, land clearing, farming, commercial real estate and oil. His community service includes 17 years in the City of Sugar Land—eight years as a city councilman and nine years as mayor.

The Duggans' generosity to Texas A&M extends beyond their PES. They also have established an Endowed Opportunity Award and support various Corps of Cadets' programs, including a Sul Ross Scholarship.

"The Aggie spirit and ring are known all over the world," Lee Duggan says. "We have great faith that our current recipient, Rachel Thompson, will make a difference in this world because of her attitude and education."

"This scholarship has been such a blessing to both me and my parents," Rachel Thompson '10, says of her President's Endowed Scholarship. "Thanks to the Duggans' generosity, I have been able to attend the university of my dreams, focus on my studies and get involved as a college student without financial worries."

Always a whiz at math and science, civil engineering seemed the logical choice for Thompson, who is fascinated with buildings, bridges and city planning. She hopes to gain solid work experience in the United States after graduation, and then build hospitals and orphanages in Third World countries. "In the future, skills in construction and water resources will allow me to improve the quality of life for people in poverty-stricken areas."

Thompson is a mentor with Pioneers, a program that reaches out to children in Bryan on Friday nights in partnership with local churches. She is also a member of Freshman Leaders in Christ and the First Baptist Church of Bryan.

Both of her parents graduated from Texas A&M: her mother in the Class of '82 and her father in the Class of '83.

ENDOWED REGENTS' SCHOLARSHIP

Endowed Regents' Scholarships support low-income first-generation college students. Regents' Scholars must live on campus their freshman year and participate in one of Texas A&M's learning communities. Every four years, a $100,000 Regents' Scholarship endowment will provide a new recipient with a four-year scholarship.

THE HYGEIA FOUNDATION and H. LEE RICHARDS JR. '56

HARLINGEN, TEXAS

THE HYGEIA FOUNDATION was formed in 1954 to support charities in Harlingen. It was created by the Richards' family-owned Hygeia Dairy Co. in Harlingen, which funded the foundation from 5 percent of its profits. By the time the dairy was sold in 1999, it had provided significant funds to the Hygeia Foundation.

H. Lee Richards Jr. '56, a trustee of the foundation who majored in dairy manufacturing, says that once fully funded, the gift of four Regents' Scholarships to the Texas A&M Foundation will essentially terminate the Hygeia Foundation's existence. "I'm doing this because I want more students from this area to attend Texas A&M," Richards says, "and I know the Texas A&M Foundation can grow this program and help students from Harlingen. This type of support is especially needed down here."

Richards' father and uncle attended Texas A&M, as well as two nephews. Richards married a girl from Bryan, and she still accompanies him to almost every Aggie football game. He credits the Corps of Cadets with helping him become the man he is today.

"I hope this young man, John Rios '12, who is on the Hygeia Regents' Scholarship, is going to be instrumental in growing the Corps of Cadets."

John Rios Jr. '12 says he chose Texas A&M for two reasons: its diverse student population and the Corps of Cadets. He considered Norwich University in Vermont and The Citadel, but Texas A&M was always his top choice, despite the fact that everyone else in his extended family went to the University of Texas.

He visited Texas A&M four times, beginning in his senior year. "The campus was huge, but it doesn't feel huge now — it feels down-to-earth. It's not a cultural shock. It's a great environment for somebody who hasn't been away from home."

He initially interviewed for the Terry Foundation scholarship, but was not selected. Disheartened, he didn't think he would be able to attend Texas A&M because he couldn't afford it. The next week he received a letter from Texas A&M, which had the Regents' Scholarship listed first among several scholarships. "Just seeing that word 'Regents' brightened me up," he says. "Without the scholarships, I wouldn't have been able to go to college."

Rios is active in the Civil Air Patrol. After graduation, he hopes to work for the Department of Defense, CIA or FBI.

"I know I want to be a better person from this experience," he says. "I'm going to learn a lot academically, but I'm also going to learn a lot about myself along the way. I do know that I want to walk away from Texas A&M having been in the Corps for four years."

FOUNDATION EXCELLENCE AWARD

ELLEN and PENROD THORNTON '63

COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS

ELLEN AND PENROD THORNTON created the John & Helen Thompson Foundation Excellence Award in memory of her parents, who died two years ago.

"One of the things that makes this scholarship important is that Ellen's parents grew up during the Depression and the Second World War, and they never had the opportunity to go college," he says. "Because of that, both of her parents felt it was important for Ellen to have a good education. This scholarship is a continuation of their wishes."

After working in the Klein Independent School District for 20 years as a teacher, assistant principal and associate principal, Ellen Thornton retired and is now a part-time instructor for Texas A&M's Student Learning Center. She serves on the advisory council for Texas A&M's College of Education & Human Development. Now semi-retired, Penrod Thornton worked for the federal government for many years and more recently was the deputy director of the Bush Library Foundation. His father and grandfather were Aggies, classes of '39 and '15.

"One of the reasons we created this award is because Texas needs good teachers and role models," she says. "With the state's changing demographics, it's important that Texas teachers reflect the Texas population."

Robin Sweet '10 chose Texas A&M because she immediately felt a part of the Aggie family. She received that opportunity only because of the Foundation Excellence Award funded by Ellen and Penrod Thornton.

"I chose Texas A&M because of its strong academic program in education," she says. "But now I have developed a second family. At Texas A&M, people are here for you."

Sweet is a member of Excellence Uniting Culture, Education and Leadership (ExCEL), a student organization that helps first-year students and their parents make a smooth transition from high school to Texas A&M. She also is part of the Phi Eta Sigma honor society, is a High School Leadership Conference volunteer, and has coordinated educational seminars for the African Student Leadership Institute.

After graduation, she plans to teach algebra at her alma mater, Aldine Senior High School, which already has offered her a contract. "When times get stressful and I feel like giving up, I've been motivated knowing that the Thorntons are pushing me to succeed."

ENDOWED OPPORTUNITY AWARD

For decades, Endowed Opportunity Awards (EOA) have supported highly motivated incoming freshmen with financial challenges. PEGGY L. and CHARLES BRITTAN '65

SPRING, TEXAS

An Opportunity Award and an Aggie veterinarian named Dr. Curtis Wilson lured Charles Brittan '65 to Texas A&M. He worked at Wilson's clinic in Arlington while in high school. "I hadn't really thought about college, although it was assumed I would go," Brittan says. "Dr. Wilson told me about Texas A&M and wrote the letter that helped me get an Opportunity Award. This scholarship is close to our hearts because it's for students with financial need."

The Brittans' Aggie philanthropy is extensive. Among others, they have funded a teaching award, a science scholarship, a Sul Ross Scholarship, two President's Endowed Scholarships, two Foundation Excellence Awards and the Center for Executive Development at the Mays Business School. They also have made provisions for a Texas A&M scholarship in their estate.

The Brittans took advantage of ExxonMobil's generous matching-gift program, which matches employees and retirees' charitable contributions 3-to-1. "We really can't afford not to contribute," he says. "We hope this scholarship will relieve some of the financial pressure Chad Cooper, our scholarship recipient, will experience at Texas A&M. If he doesn't have to work so many hours, he can spend more time experiencing the traditions and activities that make this place special."

"This scholarship has ultimately given me the opportunity to pursue my dreams and the dreams of my parents," says Chad Cooper '11. "It has allowed me to be able to say that I am a first-generation college student and a first-generation Aggie. I have six siblings, and none of them have attended A&M or any college."

This year Cooper participated in HOSTS (Helping Other Students To Succeed) at Fannin Elementary School in Bryan. "It was gratifying knowing that I could give back to my community in this way," he says of the program, which helps local children who are struggling academically.

The "howdy" tradition and friendly folks in Aggieland have changed the way Cooper regards strangers. "I love the traditions and the at-home family feeling of this place," he says. "I understand now what it means to be an Aggie—we are all connected. As this academic year started, I've found myself saying 'howdy' to people I don't even know. Before, I rarely talked to strangers. But I think that's what it's all about, and I'm dedicated to keeping these traditions going."

ROBERT HOLTON '84 '89 and SCOTT ROSELIUS '87 '89

Aggies Robert Holton '84 '89 and Scott Roselius '87 '89 purchased Heights Venture Architects in 1999 with three other architects. Holton and Roselius met as graduate students at Texas A&M.

Their Heights Venture Scholarship is an annual scholarship awarded to a student participating in the College of Architecture's study abroad program in Italy. The semester-long program takes place at the Santa Chiara Study Center in the Tuscan town of Castiglione Fiorentino, south of Florence.

In 1983, while an undergraduate, Holton studied at La Poggerina, a converted seminary in the Tuscan hills that was previously the site of the study abroad program.

"For me, that semester abroad was as valuable as the rest of my education," Holton says. "It would have really helped me out to have had financial assistance when I studied in Italy. Because of a lack of funds, I almost couldn't go. If money keeps a student from participating, that's really sad."

From ages 2 to 9, Roselius lived in Spain and Belgium. He studied at La Poggerina in 1986. "Cultural awareness is very important to me, particularly in this day and age," Roselius says. "If I can help students in the architecture program become more culturally aware—not only in an architectural sense, but socially—that's what I want to do."

Several years ago, the Ostermeier family lost everything—including the family business—in a house fire that left no money to cover college expenses. "Ever since the fire, it's been pretty rough," Matt Ostermeier '09 says. "Without financial aid, I definitely wouldn't be able to go to Texas A&M. But one of the main things I love about A&M is the attitude that you can do anything if you really want to, and everyone's there to help you out."

Ostermeier's Heights Venture Scholarship will allow him to study architecture at the Santa Chiara Study Center in Castiglione, Italy, during the spring 2009 semester. He has never left the United States and has traveled outside Texas only a couple of times.

"This scholarship is truly a gift. It's hard for me to imagine what Italy's going to be like. I'm definitely excited about my semester there, and I have my scholarship donors to thank for that."

Editor's note: Roberts died on Oct. 25, 2008. It will come as no surprise to those who knew him that he insisted on driving himself and our assistant editor to the photo shoot for this publication just a few weeks before his passing. At 92, he was as full of life and love for Texas A&M as any Aggie could be. He will be missed.

GENERAL RUDDER ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

General Rudder Corps Scholarships encourage cadets to make a commitment to learning leadership in the Corps of Cadets while maintaining a high level of academic success. Every four years, a $50,000 endowment provides a student with a four year scholarship.

DONOR

COL. AUSTIN ROBERTS '41

BRENHAM, TEXAS

"I TRY TO INSTILL IN STUDENTS that two things are important: 'There's no such thing as a free lunch, and what goes around comes around,'" said Col. Austin Roberts '41. "If you receive a helping hand on a scholarship, then you do the same thing for somebody else when you're able to."

At age 17, Roberts borrowed money and opened a service station to help pay his college tuition. While an undergraduate, he also worked as a surveyor to cover other college expenses.

After graduation he joined the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, served in World War II and the Korean War, and remained active in the Army Reserve until 1971. He earned an MBA from the University of Houston and graduated from the Army Command and General Staff College.

During their lifetimes, Roberts and his wife, Ruth, funded more than 20 scholarships, and he named Texas A&M as one of five charities in his estate. It's the relationship with students that inspired the couple's giving.

"I got a thank-you letter from my scholarship recipient, Zach Gibson, right after he found out about this scholarship," Roberts said in early 2008. "Some of my scholarship students are almost like grandchildren. I'm interested in their lives and in what makes them tick. I know something about every one of them."

"The first part of my freshman year was really tough at times," says Zachary Gibson '10, a member of the the Fightin' Texas Aggie band. "I didn't know if I could continue. But when I received the Rudder Scholarship in October of that year, I figured it was a sign that I should be at Texas A&M."

Gibson had the honor of meeting Col. Austin Roberts '41 before he died in October. He made a special trip to Roberts' home in Brenham last summer to help build a fence.

"He memorized all kinds of things about us," Gibson says. "He'd set up a breakfast in the Corps Center, and we'd all get together and talk and tell stories. He kept track of our grades and called us to check on how we were doing and whether we were studying. We were kind of like his adopted family."

Gibson says the Corps has changed his life. And he hopes in turn to change others' lives through the Corps. "I like being part of the Corps because I can now have an impact on people who are below me in rank and help them develop the core values of the Corps. I can help them find the true meaning of what we do deep in their heart and help it touch them like it's touched me."

SEAN M. '01 and HEATHER SUSTMAN GOLDEN '99

HOUSTON, TEXAS

THE GOLDENS' Southerland Aggie Leader Scholarship is a tangible demonstration that campus leadership and involvement are valuable far beyond a student's college years. "My leadership roles at Texas A&M helped me secure a job and have continued to enhance my life in general," Sean Golden says. "It's the stuff you don't normally learn from a textbook. You learn it from experiences outside the classroom."

A reservoir engineer for Hilcorp Energy Co. in Houston, Sean majored in petroleum engineering and also was the recipient of a President's Endowed Scholarship. He met Heather at Fish Camp, where both volunteered as counselors. He also played rugby and served on the Aggie Muster Committee. Now a stay-at-home mother of the couple's two children, Heather Golden majored in finance and worked for ExxonMobil. She was a member of the MSC Jordan Institute for International Awareness, Fish Olympics and Sigma Phi Lambda Christian sorority.

"A big part of the Texas A&M experience is the 'other education,' activities outside of academics," she says. "Through this scholarship, Sean and I are giving students the funds they need to afford these experiences without having to work."

"I didn't even know about Texas A&M before I applied," says Michelle Wong '10. "I was really leaning toward t.u. because all my cousins who went to college went there." The first in her immediate family to attend college, Wong didn't have the family ties that attract so many to A&M.

What captured her attention was Mays Business School's Center for International Business Studies and its international business studies certificate, a program that accompanies the regular undergraduate business curriculum. The offer of a Regents' Scholarship, and later, the Southerland Aggie Leader Scholarship, were also enticing.

It didn't take long before this Hong Kong native was hooked on Aggieland—primarily through joining several Aggie organizations. "I've really experienced the Aggie spirit through these groups. I'm involved because I love this campus. I never thought that doing something that I liked would be rewarded."

In her free time, Wong participates in the Freshman Leadership Development Retreat, the Hong Kong Student Association and the High School Leadership Conference.

Fluent in Cantonese, Mandarin, English, Japanese and Spanish, Wong likely will spread the Aggie spirit and ingenuity overseas.

CORPS OF CADETS SCHOLARSHIPS

Corps 21 is the premier Corps scholarship, offered to top cadets who show outstanding academic and leadership success. Every four years, your $100,000 endowment will provide a new recipient with a four-year scholarship.

General Rudder Corps Scholarships encourage cadets to make a commitment to learning leadership in the Corps while maintaining a high level of academic success. Every four years, your $50,000 endowment will provide a new recipient with a four-year scholarship.

Sul Ross Corps Scholarships have been helping cadets with financial support since the early 1980s. Every four years, your $25,000 endowment will provide a new recipient with a four-year scholarship.

Investing in students is a pivotal experience that honors and rewards your Aggie spirit. The Foundation makes the process clear and easy. For more information on funding options, please request the Foundation's "Methods of Giving" brochure by contacting us at giving.tamu.edu or (800) 392-3310. Our knowledgeable staff will work with you and your advisers to design the best plan for your unique circumstances.

STUDENTS

Giving back to Texas A&M is meaningful. You can give online at giving.tamu.edu through our Give Now online service, which allows you to make payments on an endowment you've already established or to contribute to pooled funds. Many donors make their payments online to take advantage of credit-card frequent-user bonuses. Simply put your Foundation account information in the Special Instructions section. If you're making a donation of less than $25,000—the minimum amount needed to fund a named endowment—online giving might be perfect for you. You can make a gift to a scholarship pool and add your support to that of other donors. If you'd like to give $25,000 or more, we recommend that you speak with a Foundation development officer.

Your gift can take any of the following forms:

- Fund a current gift with a check, credit card or electronic fund transfer; with securities*; or with real estate.*
- Create a matching gift if you are the employee of a company that offers matching programs. These can double, triple or quadruple the size of your gift.
- An after-your-lifetime gift includes bequests, IRAs, life insurance and living trusts.
- A dual-benefit gift provides you with earnings from a financial instrument such as a charitable gift annuity or charitable remainder trust that you set up with help from your financial advisers. A dual-benefit gift will produce earnings for you during your lifetime, after which your endowment is created to benefit Texas A&M.
- A retained life estate gift allows you to give real estate as a current gift yet retain the right to live on your property during your lifetime.
- A charitable lead trust provides payments to benefit A&M over a period of years, after which the trust principal is returned to you or to your heirs.

Real estate and securities can be used to fund current and most planned gifts.*

Long-term Investment Fund Asset Allocation

By investing assets, the Foundation preserves the purchasing power of gifts while providing steady earnings for Texas A&M. The Foundation's long-term investment pool is composed mostly of endowments. For the one-, three- and five-year periods, the long-term investment pool experienced annualized total returns of 15%, 10.34% and 12.58% respectively through June 30, 2008.

Endowment Fund Growth

The Foundation's long-term investment strategy ensures that endowments grow over time to keep pace with inflation. For example, a $100,000 fellowship endowed in 1996 would have provided $70,215 for graduate students during the past 12 years. Even with these disbursements, the endowment's market value would have grown to $157,123 as of June 30, 2008.
